MAYOR ANNOUNCES PRESERVATION AWARD

READING, PA – Reading Mayor Thomas M. McMahon today announced today that the City of Reading has received a 2010 Historic Preservation award for its work on the Pagoda.

The award is to be presented by Preservation Pennsylvania on September 17 at a ceremony at the State Museum of Pennsylvania in Harrisburg.

“We are grateful for the recognition of our ongoing efforts to preserve the Pagoda on Mt. Penn, which is an enduring part of the fabric of our community,” Mayor McMahon said. “Many people have had a hand in our success and share in this award.”

“The Pagoda is a special place, and continues to attract more and more people,” he said.

Preservation Pennsylvania has been honoring “significant contributions to the field of historic preservation” since 1979, according to its web site.
